Luz: I'm so happy we're all together tonight. Between church activities and everything else, I feel like I haven't seen you in weeks.

Fiore: Same here. My business has been nonstop lately. I'm grateful, but honestly, I'm exhausted.

Evelyn: I understand. Accounting season is starting, and the workload is already intense.

Mercedes: You all sound so busy. Being a housewife keeps me occupied too, but sometimes I feel a little disconnected.

Luz: Mercedes, your work at home matters just as much as any job. Don't underestimate it.

Fiore: Exactly. Running a home is real work. And honestly, I wish I had a little more calm time like you.

Evelyn: Balance is important for all of us. Even with work, we need moments to breathe.

Mercedes: I guess you're right. I've been trying to find new hobbies, but I still feel overwhelmed sometimes.

Luz: Maybe you can join me at church one day. We have a women's group that meets every Thursday. It's very supportive.

Mercedes: That actually sounds nice. I could use something positive and peaceful.

Fiore: And if you ever want to help me with small tasks at the shop, you're welcome. No pressure—just something fun.

Evelyn: See? You have options. And we're always here for you.

Mercedes: Thanks, sisters. I really appreciate it.

Luz: How about we all set a small goal for this week? Something just for ourselves.

Fiore: Mine will be to stop working after 9 p.m. No more midnight emails.

Evelyn: I'll take a walk every afternoon to clear my mind.

Mercedes: I'll try that women's group at church.

Luz: And I'll take one evening off from church activities to rest. Deal?

All: Deal!
